SENATE INQUIRY.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Before the Senate Sub-Committee on Labor and Education Hon. Richard Powers, of Chicago, the General President of the Knights of Labor, was called. The organization, explained, amounted to 50 Powers, about 10 per cent of all the artisans employed in the manufacture of the great cities. The object of the order was to raise the condition of the laborer, who had formerly been properly the greatest and most essential to the so-called [illegible] economy. Individuality is distinctive of organized labor. Powers explained the methods of the Knights of Labor. The order also aimed to provide for its superannuated members, and to this purpose proposed eventually to found an institution and a home for old artisans similar to that at Oakland Home, Harlem or Staten Island. A bill to pass before the United States Senate Committee on Commerce prohibiting the employment of boy vessels. Many of the details which occur on the labor will then be discussed. The bill also contemplates the prevention of the shipping interests on the lakes by putting a compulsory labor enforcement to save the vessels with suitable crews. Many of the large corporations engaged in labor and quarrels of labor have declined to confer with the Knights of Labor, and the latter have refused to treat with them. Powers explained that the Knights of Labor [illegible] to [illegible] Powers [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
